Section 504 Training

Presented by: Laura Booth

Friday, April 13, 2018

Time: 9 AM-2:30 PM

Member Fee: $199/person

Non-Member Fee: $209/person

This training will provide participants an understanding of the basic foundations of the Section 504 law, to learn a simple formula for eligibility, and to answer the more difficult questions that arise on a day to day basis. Registration fee includes refreshments, lunch, general and Admin CEUs.

A manual will be available for purchase for $25 at the session. It will not be required for the training but will serve as a great resource. The manual is comprised of material on Section 504 from the legal definitions, to questions and answers from the Office for Civil Rights, and from the Booth Law Group's work over the last 15 years. It also contains an essay on how to discipline, how to treat service animals, extracurricular activities, grading, etc.

About the presenter

Laura Booth has been an education lawyer for 30 years. She has successfully represented school districts in administrative, state and federal court proceedings including the Eight Circuit Court of Appeals and the United States Supreme Court. Laura is a cum laude graduate of Hamline University School of Law. She is a former Human Resource Director for a school district and has a business/human relations degree from Michigan State University. Laura was appointed as a Special Assistant Attorney General to assist with litigation involving special education and discrimination issues raised by students residing in juvenile detention facilities. She has completed certified mediation training and is active in efforts to promote educational equity.
